About the Month of Adar

Known as a month of celebration and happiness, the late-winter month of Adar contains the joyous holiday of Purim that takes place mid-month. Purim, however, isn't the only thing that makes Adar special. The Hebrew name "Adar" is related to the word "adir," which denotes strength and power.

Adar is the only month in the Jewish calendar that comes back for seconds. The Jewish leap year, or shanah me'uberet (literally "pregnant year" in Hebrew), occurs approximately once every three years. In order to assure that the lunar months of the Jewish year stay in sync with the solar calendar, an additional month of Adar is added.

This year we enjoy a single Adar.

From the Rabbi

What's in a Name:

Some Reflections on Names in Judaism

As discussions are taking place in our synagogue about the possibility of changing its name, here are some reflections and suggestions that I hope might be helpful in the process.

K'shmo, ken hu. As is one's name, so is the person or entity. (I Samuel 25;25) Jewish tradition teaches us that a name reflects the essence of that which bears the name. Jacob's name reflected his rivalry with his twin brother, Esau (Jacob means "heel," reminding us that from the very beginning of his life, he grabbed Esau's heel in an unsuccessful effort to prevent Esau from being born first). A name is descriptive.

Or a name can be aspirational. When someone is mortally ill, there is a Jewish custom of changing their name to Chaim or Chaya or adding Chaim or Chaya to their name. Since Chaim and Chaya mean life, the hoped-for result is that the person will remain alive, in accordance with the meaning of their new name.

Consideration #1 Since names are important because they describe something actual or hoped-for about the entity being named, what does this mean for our synagogue? Does the name adequately convey/accurately describe the institution as it is and/or as it aspires to be? It suggests that we might start with asking ourselves: what is at the essence of our synagogue? What is it that we feel most embodies what our synagogue is about? Or what do we hope for our synagogue to become? A first step is to articulate who we are/what we stand for or who we want to become. That may help us find a name that embodies who we are or how we want to develop.

Consideration #2 Who do we have in mind when we keep or choose a name for our synagogue? Members who are comfortable with the current size and name of the synagogue may not see a reason to change the name. On the other hand, members who are not comfortable with the name or who are concerned that it might hamper the growth of the synagogue by discouraging potential members from joining might want to modify or change the name.

#3 As we consider options.

Is the name inclusive? Would someone hearing the name feel attracted to or distanced from a synagogue with that name? The House of Prayer might be an accurate name describing some synagogues that focus on religious services only. But the Society for the Advancement of Judaism (an actual synagogue in NY) might be a more descriptive name for a synagogue that includes other activities. Is someone who is not a Son or who has no idea what Zion means likely to feel attracted or distanced from our synagogue?

Is the name understandable? Would a totally Hebrew name, for instance, be a minus for someone who doesn't know any Hebrew? Would a totally English name turn off someone who appreciates

Does the name include emotional content? Some synagogues go by names like: Romemu (meaning Lift Up!, Exalt!), Hadar (meaning Glory, Beauty, Majesty), the Kitchen (suggesting sustenance for body and soul), or Ikar (the Essence). Would someone hearing a proposed name evoke the response: this is something I want to be part of!

Consideration #4 One name...or maybe two? (Not entirely serious, inspired in part by Purim.)

Can one entity have two different names? With the holiday of Purim just around the corner, we are reminded that the heroine of the story had not one, but two names. Take a look in Megillat Esther – the Scroll of Esther – Chapter 2 verse 7: “and he [Mordechai] brought up Hadassah, that is, Esther, his uncle’s daughter...” Esther’s other name was Hadassah. Jacob also eventually had another name: Israel. Is there any benefit to considering the possibility of having two names? Maybe a name with two parts; one English, one Hebrew?

Names are important; they embody identity and values. We may feel strongly about the names we like -- and don’t like. Whatever we choose, may our discussions reflect the practice of the school of Hillel: to first respect and understand the position of others before presenting their own views. Together we will find what is best for our shul community.

Rabbi Saul Perlmutter

Shoshana Zonderman will be presenting at the

ADULT EDUCATION CELEBRATION

March 29th at 1:15pm

Shoshana Zonderman will be presenting a one hour workshop on March 29 at 1:15pm as part of the Jewish Community of Amherst's Limmud Day (Day of Learning.) The title is "Creating Meaningful Jewish Rituals." She will explore the process of creating Jewish rituals to enhance life cycle moments and other personal transitions that are not usually recognized in Judaism. She will discuss her own original ceremony for becoming a Jewish mother. Participants are invited to share unique rituals that they have experienced and to imagine future rituals that they might like to develop.

Please register for this workshop (and others) and come to lunch at noon. Register online at <http://bit.ly/jca50aereg>.

Song of Songs.

All are welcome!

Please join Congregation Sons of Zion as we welcome Rabbi Ellen Bernstein to discuss The Promise of the Land

The Promise of the Land haggadah understands that the freedom we celebrate on Passover depends on the earth's well-being. If the earth and its systems are compromised, our freedom is compromised. Life itself is compromised.

Now more than ever, we need holiday celebrations to inspire and embolden us to turn our hearts, minds and efforts towards the earth and all her creatures. The 50th anniversary of Earth Day this April affords us a special opportunity to help mobilize our communities.

Thirty years ago, with the 20th anniversary of Earth Day, Rabbi Ellen Bernstein launched Shomrei Adamah, the first national Jewish environmental organization. This year, she is working to help re-invigorate the Jewish environmental movement by seeding and supporting community-wide Passover Earth Seders in advance of Earth Day.

SOZ BOOK CLUB MEETING

Sunday, March 29th at 9:30am

Our next book by request is "Evergreen" by Belva Plain. The book is readily available from local libraries.

Yearning for a better life, Anna Friedman fled Poland for New York at the turn of the century. Finding work as a maid for the Werner family, Anna discovers an elegance beyond her dreams—and the passion of Paul Werner, a man beyond her reach, even when she is in his arms. But it is Joseph Friedman whom she marries. And through an act of illicit passion that will haunt her though all her days, Anna lifts Joseph from poverty to a wealth on which the Friedman dynasty would be based for generations. Sweeping from Jazz Age New York to Nazi Germany to a sun-baked Israeli kibbutz, Evergreen has become a modern American classic—an epic novel that spans three generations of an unforgettable family—and exposes the heart of an extraordinary woman: her marriage, her children, her deceit.

"A magnificent story . . . this beautifully written book will be treasured and reread for many years to come."—Library Journal
