About the Month of Iyar

Although Iyar does not contain many “special days,” every single day of the month is included in the Sefirat HaOmer, the mitzvah of counting each of the 49 days between Passover and Shavuot. Sefirat HaOmer is a period of introspection and self-refinement, as we prepare ourselves to receive the Torah anew on Shavuot. Each day of Iyar represents another step in this spiritual journey toward Sinai.

From the Rabbi

I hadn't wanted my article this month to be about shootings and bombings and hate targeting Jews and other religious communities.

But just six months after the deadliest attack on Jews in America at the Tree of Life synagogue in Pittsburgh, violence has struck again during a Shabbat service on the last day of Passover, this time at a synagogue in Poway, near San Diego, California. Another hate-filled shooter. Another death. More wounded. More grief, more fear, more tears.

It is difficult to avoid the thought that violence directed against Jewish institutions is on the rise. And this violence is not just against Jews and not just in this country. Consider last month's murder of 50 worshippers at a mosque in New Zealand, live-streamed on video by the shooter. Or the simultaneous suicide bombings killing hundreds attending church services on Easter Sunday in Sri Lanka.

I wish that I could dismiss these as stand-alone, isolated acts that will not recur. Unfortunately all-consuming hate and the conviction that one is doing something positive by acting on their hate seems to be spreading like a virus. I just read that the 19 year old college student who struck the synagogue in Poway wrote a letter before the attack indicating that he was inspired by the massacre in the mosque in New Zealand. He also claimed responsibility for attempted arson at a mosque in California.

These are not random acts. One builds upon the other. They are connected by a similar us vs them view of the world. As political leaders vilify groups such as immigrants for the ills of their countries, and as people are labelled as "deviant" based on sexual orientation or other characteristics, the door is open wider for more marginalization, demonization and victimization of those who are "different."

I had hoped to write something this month that would be upbeat and celebratory. I would have preferred to focus on the very special and loving community that we have at Sons of Zion. For example, I have heard from many members of our congregation about how they shared wonderful seders with others from the synagogue. Some of these seders were large, some were small, but all of them were greatly enjoyed and appreciated by hosts and guests alike who opened their hearts and homes to one another.

I also wanted to write about our most recent Shabbat service. It was considerably longer than a usual Shabbat service because it included additional elements for the eighth day of Passover. Several people told me after the service how much it had meant to them:

both the spirited, uplifting singing of the Hallel and the quiet, meditative moments of reflection during Yizkor. They commented that they were so engaged in the service that they did not even notice that it was longer than usual. Along with a thoughtful and participatory Torah discussion, this service was a warm sharing of heart, mind and spirit that is so special about the feeling of community in our synagogue.

That sharing continued with a wonderful lecture and lively discussion the next day on anti-Semitism, led by Dr. Simon Sibelman, an outstanding scholar on the topic and a member of our shul. Our President, Joan Rosner, also announced that same day that Sons of Zion had just received a $50,000 grant from the Department of Homeland Security, part of which will be used for threat alert and safety response training. The grant, which was put together by board member Andrea Fox, Joan, and an expert consultant, will provide free training for up to 30 synagogue members.

So now the various strands of this article converge.

I wanted to write about how this congregation is a gift we give one another. The relationships and community we share are so very precious. Let us enjoy and celebrate them in gratitude and appreciation.

I needed to write about the increasing risks that our synagogue and other houses of worship need to take seriously. Thankfully, this grant, obtained by our synagogue leadership, takes the risks seriously and provides us with positive, concrete action we can take to keep our precious community safe and secure. Rabbi Hillel taught: if I am not for myself, who will be for me? Consider taking the important step for our safety by signing up for the excellent training and prevention made possible by the grant. To register or for more information, call the synagogue office 413 534-3369.

Rabbi Hillel also taught: if I am only for myself, what am I? We do not live in isolation. We must be concerned about and reach out to other faith communities and marginalized groups that are being targeted for intimidation and violence. It felt good to learn that an imam and a minister reached out to us in an act of solidarity by attending our program on anti-Semitism. Let us consider how we as individuals and as a religious community can stand together with other faith and marginalized groups, affirming respect and caring in the face of bigotry and hatred.

Rabbi Hillel asked one more question, which is really a call to action: if not now, when?

What will our answer be?

Threat Alert and Safety Response Training at SOZ JUNE 3 and JUNE 4, 2019

The massacre of eleven Jews praying at the Tree of Life synagogue represented the most shocking evidence of the significant rise of Anti-Semitic acts in the United States and throughout the world.

Then, six months to the day from that horrible tragedy, we are still in shock over the attack in Poway, CA. Locally this year there have been reports of swastikas painted on trees in Holyoke and Easthampton as well as on a student's door at UMASS.

While we would like to think that this is a distant problem, these threats are real, and the more you know in advance, the better your chances of survival and the better prepared you are to help others.

Fortunately, Congregation Sons of Zion has received a generous grant from the Department of Homeland Security to prepare to respond to these threats. An important part of the grant will fund two 4 hour training sessions designed for us and our building.

Training will be lead by Eric A Stratton, owner and President of STS Consulting. Eric is a defensive tactics, firearms, safety and threat expert with 26 years of EMS and tactical training and over 18 years working for the Hampden County Sheriff's Department.

Eric has devised for us an eight hour training broken down into two four hour blocks.

Eric has taught similar courses at DEA headquarters in Quantico, VA, Canada, Alabama, Maine, New Jersey, Ohio, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Vermont .He has also been a guest speaker for the Western Massachusetts Guidance Counselors Association and twice at the Department of Fire Safety annual Fire & Life Safety Education Conference.

Adult Spelling Bee

On Thursday, April 11th, veteran contestants and spelling aficionados Lois Levin as team captain and Michael Rosner were joined by Norman Halperin to become the “SOZ Beez” team in the Homework House Spelling Bee which took place at Mill 1 at Open Square. SOZ cheerleaders supporting them for this contest were their spouses, Steve, Joan and Marion respectively as well as Rich Freyman, Al Hutt, Steve Levine and David Scher. Congregation SOZ member Fran Welson, a Homework House volunteer, was involved in the event festivities.

Three rounds of more than ten teams each competed to be the winner of their “swarm.” The winner of each “swarm” moved on to the final round. The SOZ Beez put up a very respectable round three challenge forcing twelve words to be presented (out spelling rounds one and two by eight and four word respectively) before losing on the word “synecdoche” to the ultimate winners. (We had a “t” instead of a “d.”)

Thank you, Lois, Michael and Norman, for representing our SOZ community at this event, and kudos on your distinguished performance!
